

PEACE ADVOCATES PRESS MOVEMENT

Promise to Carry Plea to Trenches as Alternative to Neutral Nonaction.

of the warring powers were told, in effect: "You have the right and only way to accomplish peace. Do it and do it quickly."

With that evidence presented to the head of the greatest of the neutral nations, and Mrs. Schimmmer, who have taken every step in their power to get governments to end this struggle. If they will not then we must make our appeal to the warring nations through their thinking men, not through their officials.

"We do not wish to say much of this alternative plan. We hope the President will recognize the validity of the evidence we are to give him."

"But if he does not, and if governments won't end this struggle that is eating up the men of half the globe, then we are ready to go to the men who are fighting, and the men who are growing tired of fighting blindly."

Mrs. Schimmmer displayed a map of the world, on which, in black, were shown the countries involved and their possessions, and those who have kept out of the strife were shown in white. The United States and China were the two most conspicuous patches of white on the map, which showed up Canada, Africa, the vast area of Siberia, and Australia in black as well as Europe. This map is to be brought into service at the meeting this afternoon.

Nations May Stop.

"We are going to show to the thinking men of all the fighting powers," she continued, "that this war must end, or there will be no nations. If it keeps on, the fighting, as nations, may stop. But internal revolution will then take place."

"The men who have the money bags must not be permitted any longer to control the governments. The men who are fighting are bound to think, and we women can give them plenty to think about. We will publish what they think, and the negotiations for peace that we shall conduct will be in the organization behind us, will not be conducted in secret chambers."

From Belva Lockwood.

One of the telegrams received at the White House today was from Belva Lockwood, peace advocate and woman suffragist, Washington.

Mrs. Lockwood's telegram included the appeal sent broadcast, signed by Miss Jane Addams, and concluded: "I concur most heartily with the above address, and while I have no zone to sacrifice in the Moloch of war, I am not in favor of sacrificing any other mother's sons, and while I cry out against that peace is not wanted now in any of the warring nations and human beings are being sacrificed daily and hourly, sacrificed to the mad ambition of a few rulers who believe in the divine right of kings, this should not satisfy the consciences of any civilized or Christian man in this advanced age of the world. Let us do what we can. We must not let the war end, and the Lord will give the peace, the peace. Let the conference be called."

"With highest regards," "BELVA LOCKWOOD, LL. D."

Nothing could be learned this morning as to how the President is receiving the telegrams. By noon the day's editorial had begun. Mrs. Henry Ford defrayed the expenses of the telegraphic campaign.

Mrs. George H. Ruffolo, who attended the Hague meeting with Miss Jane Addams this summer, will introduce a resolution, prepared this morning at the conference of the women peace workers, which will state that diplomats of foreign nations have expressed willingness to have a peace conference called and urged President Wilson to take the initiative in such a conference.

Have Morning Conference.

Mrs. Snowden, when she arrived at the New Willard Hotel this afternoon, was accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Watson, and Miss Madeline Dwyer, two leading peace workers of New York city. Mrs. Schimmmer also is in the city, and conferred this morning with those who are arranging this afternoon's meeting. Mrs. John Jay White will be one of the speakers this afternoon.

Others to be in the audience this afternoon will be Mrs. George H. Ruffolo, Mrs. Christian D. Hennick, and Mrs. Arthur Ramsey. One boxholder will be Mrs. Albert Hurlston, wife of the Postmaster General.

Mrs. Louis Post, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Labor, who also was among the delegates to the Hague conference this summer, will preside. She will make an introductory statement explaining the purpose of the meeting.

President Expected to Decline to Attempt Present Peace Move

With the telegraph instruments at the White House unable to carry any longer the increasing stream of telegrams from the women of the United States to the President urging the calling of a peace conference of neutral nations, messenger boys were going in and out of the Executive offices all day.

Exactly similar in phraseology, with few exceptions, the telegrams, to pay for which Mrs. Henry Ford provided a fund of $10,000, have the effect of a monstrous chant from the hearts of thousands of women, crying out against the fearful slaughter abroad.

"We urge a conference of neutral nations devoted to the finding of a just settlement of the war."

By noon today it was estimated that more than 3,000 of these messages had been received. At the hour of the approaching for the mass meeting at the Belasco Theater the flood of telegrams increased in volume. ATTACKS ON BOY-ED DANNED BY LANSING

Suppose that Captain Boy-Ed had asked us to transfer supplies to the Maria Quezada. Does that show any conception of the Hamburg-American line with her clearances papers?"

Judge Howe ruled that all evidence regarding the Maria Quezada be stricken out at the conclusion of the government's case, unless the government links the steamer up with the men on trial, on cross-examination the witness admitted that so far as he knew the Hamburg-American officials had nothing to do with the ship.

The trial was resumed today, despite rumors that the government intended to move a mistrial.

Interest in the trial was heightened by the revelation by Captain Boy-Ed, German naval attaché, of the existence of a huge "emergency fund," which the government charges, was used to fit up the relief ship sent out to the raiders.

Assistant United States District Attorney Wood denied that the government had evidence that made it undesirable for one of the jurors in the Hamburg-American trial to continue to sit.

Tells of Trip.

Capt. Olaf Neilsen, of the Norwegian steamer Neptos, was the first witness today. Neilsen said he commanded the Neptos when she was chartered by the Hamburg-American line. He was introduced to Adolph Hochmeister, one of the defendants, by the supercargo in Philadelphia.

"The supercargo told me we were to sail for Tenerife and that we were to meet certain ships at sea," testified Neilsen. "I thought it couldn't be, but he insisted. He told me I would receive $1,000 gratuity and protection in case anything happened. He said there was no risk."

Neilsen admitted signing the manifest for the Neptos.

"We cleared for Monrovia, in Africa, via Tenerife," he said. "We were to meet at that point marked on the supercargo's chart. I refused to go to the Cape Verde Islands. My officers also objected, but finally consented after a talk with the supercargo, Mr. Florer."

Sought Kronprinz.

The Neptos' real purpose was to meet the Kronprinz Friedrich Wilhelm, one of the German commerce raiders which put into Newport News after an exciting career.

"But our coal cargo caught fire," said Neilsen, "and the supplies we intended for the Kronprinz Wilhelm were damaged. We sold the cargo at Tenerife. I then received word from my home office that the charter had been canceled."

Captain Boy-Ed admitted the existence of the great "emergency fund" provided by the German government from which the government charges, came the money spent on the twelve supply ships sent out at the point marked on the supercargo's chart. He said that it was necessary, he said, for foreign representatives of first-class powers to be supplied with large sums of money to look after the interests of the countries they represent.

To a question as to how the money in question had been transmitted to him, he replied:

"That is not a concern of mine; I am not a financial agent of my government. My part in this matter has been made sufficiently plain, and I do not care to say more."

Captain Boy-Ed was talking in his suit at the German Club, where he makes his home. He calls it a workshop, and he keeps about as busy there as he does at his office in the Hamburg-American Building. When he leaves the latter at 5 o'clock each afternoon, his secretary is furnished with papers to which they devote a considerable part of each evening at the club.

When Dr. Dernburg, who came to this country as the agent of the German Red Cross, but soon took on the duties of spokesman for his government, installed a new system of department and interdepartment reports at the German Club. The first appointment was made by Dr. Dernburg served an apprenticeship with Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., the New York brokers, and the system he put in for his government was based largely upon the things he learned here.

Captain Boy-Ed proved one of the most efficient of his associates, and he works here in the same way.

Water in which potatoes have been boiled is said to be an excellent remedy for insects on animals. The first application is generally effective, but it had better be repeated a few times to destroy the eggs.

WOMAN'S PEACE PARTY RESOLUTION

The following resolution will be adopted at the mass meeting in the Belasco Theater today:

Whereas, The envoys sent by the International Congress of Women at The Hague ascertained from the governments of the belligerent nations of Europe that they would have no objections to the calling of a conference of the neutral nations of the world looking to the possible termination of the war; and

Whereas, The belligerent nations seem to be unable themselves to take the initiative to this end; and

Whereas, The women as well as the men of the nations in this war are sufferers from its devastation; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, members of the Woman's Peace Party and others assembled in Washington, urge that the President of the United States, the head of one of the principal neutral countries of the world, call upon the other neutral nations to appoint representatives to assemble in conference for constant mediation without armistice and dedicated to finding a just settlement of this conflict.

SECRETARIES MEET SEVERAL DECLINE TO ON SHIPPING BILL BE FORD'S GUESTS

McAdoo and Redfield Confer on Measure to Be Presented to Congress.

Governor Fielder Believes Peace Efforts Would Be Considered Meddlesome.

Secretary McAdoo, who is drafting the Administration's shipping bill which will be presented at the forthcoming session of Congress, conferred today with Secretary of Commerce Redfield on the naval reserve feature of the measure. The conference dealt with the auxiliary schooners which could be pressed into service as colliers and transports in time of need.

Secretary Redfield was of the opinion that the encouragement of the purchase of vessels by individuals or corporations without practical purposes was the preferable plan for providing auxiliary naval ships.

Today Secretary Redfield received a letter from Stratton, of the American Bureau of Shipping, in New York, advising him that the firm of Cox & Stevens, of New York, has just contracted to purchase two additional auxiliary schooners for the carrying of American commerce. This makes three auxiliary schooners purchased by this firm. The schooners are four-masted sailing vessels equipped with gasoline engines to furnish propulsion in calm seas. Secretary Redfield said this was the cheapest means of navigation and fleet enough for all practical purposes. He expressed his gratification over the additional purchase.

Mr. Stratton's letter also contained congratulations and thanks for Secretary Redfield for his encouragement of the purchase of these and other vessels by Americans for the solving of the ship famine.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—Governor Blanton today awaited a letter from Henry Ford before he replied to the pacifist's telegram urging him to sail on the Great II as a peace delegate to Europe. TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 26.—Gov. James F. Fielder of New Jersey today replied to the telegram of Henry Ford on the proposed international peace conference, stating his belief that such a scheme would be meddlesome, and declining to co-operate. The reply follows:

NEW YORK TO GREET SUFFRAGE PILGRIMS

Bearers of Western Women's Petition to Congress Will Be Feted Today.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—New York suffragists turned out in force today to greet the cross-country pilgrim car, bearing the Western suffragists' petition to Congress for a national suffrage amendment.

Miss Ingeborg Kindstedt, chauffeur; Miss Maria Kindberg, the machinist, and Mrs. Sara Bard Field, orator, made the cross-country trip. Miss Francis Jolliffe, one of envoys, arrived by train. They will be received by President Wilson December 6.

More than fifty decorated automobiles filled with local suffragists will meet envoys from the suffrage States.

The pilgrims will be met by this procession at 8 o'clock at the corner of street and Fifth avenue this afternoon, and escorted to Sherry's.

Here officers and members of the Congressional Union will tender the envoys a reception and tea.

George McAneny, acting mayor, will welcome the envoys from the Pacific coast. The escort of honor will comprise wives of city officials, including Mrs. Robert Adamson, Mrs. Henry Davis, Mrs. Marcus M. Marzani, Mrs. William Prendergast, and Mrs. McAneny.

Miss Jolliffe Talks.

Miss Frances Jolliffe, sister-in-law of Rudolph Stearns, one of the envoys, arrived here by train, and is stopping at the Hotel Netherlands. Miss Jolliffe said that her health would not permit her to take the automobile trip across the continent.

Miss Jolliffe is a leading Democrat of California, and was one of the most active workers in the Wilson campaign in that State.

Miss Jolliffe and Mrs. Sara Bard Field will be the chief speakers at the big reception which President Wilson will give in his honor at the White House on December 6.

"I am glad that the spirit of the women voters of the country is to put suffrage above political issues and above party affiliations," said Miss Jolliffe. "Women of the suffrage States are standing shoulder to shoulder in demanding that Congress pass the Federal suffrage amendment."

Women Ready To Threaten.

"I believe Congress will be inclined to act favorably on this amendment," said Miss Jolliffe. "We shall explain our policy to members. If the party in power fails to heed our request, we shall work for its defeat at the next election."

"I talked with scores of women in my State," said Miss Jolliffe. "They are eager to help enfranchise the women of the East, and they are standing staunchly behind the policy to be pursued by the Congressional Union."

"Even though some members of Congress may hesitate to support the amendment, I believe they will give some consideration to the fact that the women voters do represent a political power, which if turned against their party can materially assist in preventing its return to office."

Miss Jolliffe added that suffrage had proved successful in California. "If any one questions this let him attempt to take the vote away from women and see what will happen," she said.

It was announced today at Union Congressional headquarters here that the women's liberty bell, which is a symbol of the original Liberty Bell, will be brought from Philadelphia to Washington with the Western suffrage envoys and placed in the National House, which is to be headquarters for the national convention December 6 to 15. The bell was used in the big suffrage parade here during the Wilson inauguration, and has since been used in the Pennsylvania State campaign. It is not to be rung until the women of the United States have won the vote.

"It seems an appropriate time to bring it to Washington now when the envoys arrive from the West," said Miss Jolliffe, of the Congressional Union, "and we hope to be able to ring it early in January, proclaiming that the Susan B. Anthony amendment, enfranchising women, has been enacted into law."

DELEGATES TO GAS MEETING BEGIN TO ARRIVE IN CAPITAL

Big Influx Expected Monday on Special Trains From New York and the West.

Delegates to the National Commercial Gas Association convention, which will be held next week at the Willard, began to arrive in the capital today. However, the big influx is expected Monday afternoon, when two special trains, one from the West and the other from New York, will arrive. It is believed that more than a thousand delegates, together with members of their families, will attend the eleventh annual meeting of the association.

The tenth floor of the Willard has been engaged for the week and the large ballroom will be turned over to a display of every appliance known to be used with gas. The smaller ballroom will be reserved for business meetings. Today's workers were busy engaged installing all types of gas fixtures for examination by the delegates.

Newman To Give Welcome.

The convention will formally open Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, when Commissioner Oliver P. Newman will deliver the address of welcome. The remainder of the first session will be taken up by the reading of the reports of the various committees. During the afternoon papers will be read and reports of other committees will be heard.

Wednesday morning there will be no special session, but the delegates will devote their time to an examination of appliances on exhibition and will witness demonstrations of various models. The only meeting of the morning will be a special session of the executive committee, which will be held in the cabinet room of the hotel. The secretary has announced that the conference will be closed and that newspapers will not be allowed to carry a report of the transactions of this body.

Straight business sessions, comprising the reports of the committees and addresses by various members, are in order Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons, and the convention will come to a close upon the adjournment of the latter meeting.

Greeting By Uncle Sam.

Thursday morning there will be a special meeting of the committee on development of industrial fuel. A folio of the Columbia Golf Club has been arranged for the following morning, and those participating will contest for the President's cup and the Secretary's cup.

Trade Bureau to Make Report on Activities

Although the Federal Trade Commission was not called into being until a few weeks prior to the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1915, it will make a report covering that brief period. The report will emphasize the need for such a commission as shown by the immense volume of cases and other business considered between the time it opened its offices and the close of the fiscal year.

Today the commission announced that 10,000 business men and corporations had replied to its letter of inquiry on the desirability of forming export combinations for the promotion of foreign trade. Opinion for and against such combinations seems about evenly divided, but the commission feels gratified over the frank discussion of the advantages business men's letters.

Russia Seeks Japanese Loan at 14 Per Cent

TOKYO, Nov. 26.—A ten-year loan at an interest rate equivalent to 14 per cent is advertised here today by the Russo-Japanese bank.

The high interest rate is due to the depreciation of the Russian ruble, as compared with the Japanese yen, which figures in the loan. The loan purpose is payment for the war munitions Japan is selling to Russia.
